WELCOME

From the garden to the basement, we've got great springtime railroading projects in the May issue of Walthers Flyer. National Train Day is May 12 so join the celebration in your community.

Steam into summer with our latest run of USRA O-8-Os in HO and N Scales! The prototypes of these sturdy locos ran into the late 50s and are perfect for yard and industrial chores. Check out the new features now on pages 4 and 6.

The perfect diesel for road freights, branchlines, switching, commuter trains and more, the Alco RS-2 was the backbone of many first generation diesel fleets. Adding them to your roster is easy with new releases in HO and N Scale, shown here for the first time on pages 6 and 7.

Give your freight traffic a boost with the latest WalthersProto™ Ortner Hoppers and WalthersMainline™ Stock Cars, all listed inside starting on page 5.

Period passenger service isn't complete without some of the famed Pennsylvania R50b Express Reefers on your railroad. Read about the new WalthersProto release on page 5 in this issue.

In the market for a new truck this summer? Come on over and kick the tires of our new SceneMaster HO vehicles, parked on page 42 in this month's Flyer.

Make sure your collection is complete. Our 2012 Reference Books are almost gone, so order now. See page 24 for complete information.

Find out more about these new models at walthers.com, by calling us at 1-800-487-2467 or visit your participating hobby shop to reserve any new product in this issue.

Happy Modeling!

ON THE COVER

Sanders on and prime movers roaring, a trio of SD9s wrestle 125 loaded cars of coal up and over the latest in along line of stiff mountain grades. Rolled out in 1954, these six-axle haulers were exactly what they had in mind when they coined the phrase "raw power!" With a new 1750 horsepower prime mover and three traction motors on each of their Flexicoil trucks, the SDs soon found a home in helper, yard, transfer and heavy freight service. And with more axles to spread their weight, the engines worked many branchlines too. Ready to take on tough assignments on your HO railroad, the latest run of PROTO 2000 SD9s feature road-specific details, a great selection of roadnames and are available in both Standard DC and QSI® sound-equipped DCC versions. Read all about these great new locos now on page 14.

Reduce Street Congestion – Build a Subway

As cities grew so did traffic on city streets. To alleviate congestion, local governments turned to mass transit developing bus, elevated rail and subway systems to handle the crowds. Sub-surface railroads add an extra dimension to city scenes on your railroad. Portions of subways often ran on elevated rails so you can model a subway even if your layout doesn't accommodate an underground segment. Start building your subway system with these great models.

QSI Sound & DCC $289.98 | Standard DC $189.98

PROTO FASTFACTS™

The debut of the SD9 in 1954 marked the next step for EMD's Special Duty six-axle diesels. The new 567C prime mover delivered 1,750 horsepower while the three-axle Flexicoil trucks provided pulling power not only for demanding service, but were well suited to lightly built branch lines too. By the time production ended in 1959, 515 SD9s were in service on over a dozen railroads. Some are still going strong after 50+ years!

Did You Know?

As popular as ever with modelers young and old, O Scale trains have a special appeal all their own.

Introduced as toys decades ago, O Scale is still a great choice for younger railroaders just learning to handle model trains. The bigger size is more "finger friendly" as models are built tough with fewer small parts.

O Scale sets were often many modelers' first introduction to the hobby. Many of those older trains are highly sought after collectibles today, creating a specialized hobby within the hobby!

The larger size is also a big plus for modelers who like fine details, as the size not only makes them easier to see and handle, but easier for visitors to appreciate as well.
