WELCOME

Hurray for the red, white and blue, and best wishes for a safe and happy Fourth of July!

Starting off with a bang in this issue of Walthers Flyer™ are the new American Cities Structures. These outstanding HO Scale kits will dress up city scenes in popular modeling eras. See them now on page 5.

We've got an all-American line up of new rolling stock starting on page 4, including the latest Broadway Limited, and UP Heritage Fleet cars, classic EMD GP30s, and a new run of PROTO 1000™ Subway Cars.

Save some green with the Red, White & Blue Sale in this issue on pages 14-15 featuring products that will bring American style to your layout.

MINING You'll really dig our selection of mining models throughout this issue — look for the special logo that makes them easy to find!

Remember, your participating hobby shop can reserve any new item inside. Visit walthers.com or call us at 1-800-487-2467 for assistance too. Thanks for joining us and enjoy the July issue!

PROUDLY ANNOUNCING

The Santa Fe El Capitan

The HI-LEVEL Train That's Fun For Everyone!

Santa Fe received its first experimental "Hi-Levels" for testing in July, 1954.

Passengers rode in reclining seats on the upper level, where large windows provided great views. The lower level housed vestibules, restrooms, diesel generator, air conditioners, brake gear and luggage racks. Tested on several trains, Hi-Levels soon proved immensely popular.

Santa Fe ordered 67 Hi-Level cars for five complete trains: ten 68-seat Step Down Coaches (one for each end of each train), 25 72-Seat Coaches, six Diners and six Lounges.

Standard cars handled headend work, but to smooth the transition between car types, baggage-dorms were fitted with a rooftop shroud and known as "transition cars."

Santa Fe took delivery of its first passenger F7s in 1949 when A-B-B-A sets arrived in September. Numbered 37LABC through 41LABC, they were designated the 37-Class. Many remained in service until the Amtrak era, and some were later rebuilt as part of Santa Fe's CF7 program.
