VIA RAIL CANADIAN

VIA Rail Canada's Canadian streamliner, successor to Canadian Pacific Railway's (CPR) legendary postwar streamliner, operates between Toronto/Montreal and Vancouver. Inaugurated in 1955 by CPR and transferred to VIA in 1978, the Canadian features classic streamlined, stainless steel Budd-built cars, including domes and sleepers, offering a nostalgic and luxurious travel experience. The original route of the VIA Rail Canadian traveled over the CPR mainline through Thunder Bay, Calgary and Banff until 1990 when VIA moved it to the Canadian National (CN) mainline through Edmonton and Jasper, the former route of CN's Super Continental. Although no longer on its original route, the iconic Canadian is still renowned for its scenic route through the Canadian Rockies, Prairies, and northern Ontario wilderness, offering passengers a memorable journey across Canada.

- In 2020s operates with mid-train domes and premier-class "Park" dome-observation
- Train length in the 21st Century can reach 30 cars in peak season hauled by EMD F40PH diesels

NEW Gunderson 48' All Purpose Well Car

Check walters.com for current pricing.

As 45- and 48-foot containers and trailers entered domestic service in the 1990s, North American railroads soon needed a car that could better handle both types of equipment. Freight car builder Gunderson answered the call with a 48-foot version of its popular 40-foot well car. The versatile 48-foot Gunderson all-purpose well car even had trailer hitches at each end so it could handle both container and trailer traffic. Although their numbers have declined in recent years as 53-foot cars became more prevalent in the 21st century, many 48-footers can still be found hauling 20 to 48-foot containers in the well with a longer container stacked on top. The superdetailed Walther'sProto model is an easy way to add some "vintage" character to your modern era intermodal fleet.

With a one-time run of these roadnumbers, this limited edition H0 scale model features:

- Heavy die-cast metal body for excellent tracking loaded or empty
- Factory-installed wire grab irons, brake gear & other details
- Etched-metal walkways provide a realistic see-through effect
- Ultra smooth rolling metal axles and scale 33" diameter metal wheelsets
- Proto MAX™ metal knuckle couplers for reliable operation
- Factory installed trailer hitches at each end
- Well designed to fit SceneMaster™ containers from scale 20 to 48 feet
- Minimum Radius: 22" (24" recommended)

NEW 40' PS-1 Boxcar

Check walthers.com for current pricing.

Each WaltherMainline PS-1 boxcar is accurately detailed to match early postwar production cars, including:

- Pullman Standard ends without rectangle stiffeners
- Pullman Standard "bowtie" roof with flat end panels
- Factory-applied Apex steel running board with "see-through" tread
- 6' Superior Doors (non-opening)

NEW International Bay Window Caboose

Check walthers.com for current pricing.

Beginning in the 1950s, the International Car Co. developed a standard design for a bay window caboose. The large bay window allowed a conductor or brakeman to look down the length of the entire freight train, making it easier to see signals, overheated journal bearings and other potential issues. Many of these cabooses protected freight trains through the end of the caboose era in the 1980s with a few examples still on the rails today in M.O.W. or shoving platform service.

The WaltherMainline International Bay Window Caboose is back on H0 rails in several new paint schemes.

Each model features:

- Sharply molded weld seams, corrugations and other details on the body, ends and roof
- Clear window glazing
- Factory applied separate end railings, smokejack, vent and brakewheel
- Detailed underbody
- Accurate caboose-style trucks
- Scale 33-inch diameter metal wheels
- Proto MAX™ metal knuckle couplers for reliable operation
- Starter points for grab irons and other details featured in the 910-201 WaltherMainline® Caboose Detailing kit (sold separately)

NEW ACF Design 1,958 cu.ft. 2-Bay Hopper
